Council makes Schnebelt firing official

Vote unanimous with no discussion

BY BOB DEMAREE

Rick Schnebelt was officially terminated as Hanover's ordinance officer and building inspector by Hanover Town Council at a special meeting on Thursday.

The vote was unanimous with Treva Shelton making the motion seconded by Kenny Garrett.

The official action in a public meeting occurred after Schnebelt had stated that he had been informed of his termination on Friday, May 19, and the town began advertising for a new ordinance officer and building inspector on May 26.

The action in Thursday's special meeting public meeting happened quickly — less than a minute after the start of the meeting that began at 5:15 p.m. — with no discussion or remarks by the town council other than to state that Schnebelt would be paid through the Thursday date of the special meeting.

After discussing other business, the town council was in the process of adjourning when Grace Ireland, a 40-year member of the town's Board of Zoning Appeals, spoke up to express that she did not have a "good sense of the reason for (Schnebelt's) dismissal."

"On the basis of my own experience with him since I'm on the zoning board that the dealings I have had with Mr. Schnebelt were professional and extremely helpful." Ireland said, "If there were serious issues to resign, it seems to me, was there counseling ahead of time on the basis of what was going on? If not, why not?"

Ireland said from what she knows of the dismissal, "It didn't make a lot of sense to me. I don't need to know the reason behind it, but it did not sound fair and straight-forward from my point of view."

The council did not respond to Ireland's remarks and offered no explanation for the dismissal or further comment before ending the meeting.

Madison blight focus continues with update on Moody Park

City hoping to resolve suit

BY BOB DEMAREE

The City of Madison continues to focus on blight elimination with an update given at Monday's Board of Public Works and Safety meeting on a mobile home park on Moody Park Lane.

In March, BPWS unanimously approved an order that required demolition and removal of seven trailers that led to a lawsuit by James and Gail Cunningham, who both own trailers at the 421 Mobile Home Park on Moody Park Lane.

City Attorney Joe Jenner said the city has since answered that complaint but has also engaged "in potential talks to try to negotiate and resolve the matter in its entirety. Most recently, we have engaged in talks if we can do something to clean up the entire area, and rid the city of that nuisance." He said the Cunninghams have until the end of this week to consider that proposal.

"Obviously, a resolution would probably be better than continuing on with a lawsuit" in hopes of achieving a reasonable outcome, Jenner said. "My

Armbrecht gets the nod for MCS board vacancy

Board also names 2 principals and Cub Enterprise coordinator

John Schutte

Kenton Mahoney

Jordan Warner

Brian Armbrecht

BY BOB DEMAREE

Brian Armbrecht was the unanimous selection at Thursday's special meeting to become the new board member for Madison Consolidated Schools, a session that also included the hiring of two principals and the coordinator for Cub Enterprise.

The board hired Jordan Warner as principal of Madison Junior High School, Kenton Mahoney as principal of Rykers' Ridge Elementary School and John Schutte as Cub Enterprise coordinator.

The school board vacancy, created when Jay Roney resigned from the board last month after accepting a position as director of facilities with the school corporation, will represent the District 1seat Roney was elected to during the 2020 general election.

"I am excited about serving on the MCS school," said Armbrecht. "It's an opportunity for me to give back to the community."

Armbrecht said it is his understanding "the school corporation is in pretty good financial shape which lets us focus on educating and preparing our kids for whatever they want to pursue after high school."

He cited staffing as "one of the greatest challenges most school systems face. Great people are the key to great things. We have to be able to retain great people" in all aspects of the school corporation including teachers, staff, administrators, coaches, bus drivers, custodians and more. "We also need to develop people and give them the tools to become the best."

Armbrecht has worked as a pharmacist at Norton King's Daughters' Health since 2006 and has lived in Madison for 20 years. He grew up near Cross Plains and was a 1989 graduate of South Ripley High School, where his journalism teacher was Madison native Mary Margaret Moorhead, who taught for 38 years in Versailles. While in high school, Armbrecht was editor of the both the school newspaper and yearbook at South Ripley, and noted Moorhead had "a huge influence on my life. If the world had half of her energy and kindness, we would be in a greater place." After high school, Armbrecht went to Butler University where he graduated in 1996 with a bachelor of science degree in pharmacy.

His parents, Edward and Phyllis Armbrecht, have been part of the ownership of the Versailles Dairy Queen for 45 years. Armbrecht's father, who died last summer, was business manager for Madison Consolidated Schools in the late 1980s and early 1990s.

Armbrecht's wife, the former Kristen Ford, was a 1998 graduate of Madison Consolidated High School. His oldest daughter, Molly, is a 2023 MCHS graduate who served this past school year as the student representative on Madison School Board. He has three other children, Ava, a junior at MCHS; Grant, an eighth grader at Madison Junior High School, and Sadie, who will enter Kindergarten this fall.

Armbrecht was one of three candidates that filed for the vacancy — the other two being Mary Mehl and Ruth Turner. All three were interviewed in a work session that took place prior to the special board meeting. Armbrecht said that having three applicants was a good thing. "When multiple people apply, it means you have people who care about what's going on at the schools, and I think that's a good thing."

Mehl, who has four children and lives in the Rykers Ridge area, said her interest in applying was to provide the perspective of a parent with young children from rural Jefferson County and "bringing all that together and really providing the best opportunity for my kids."

Turner had praise for all of the elementary schools in the school corporation. "As a resident of Graham Township, what is going on in Deputy makes my heart expand. And I'm aware similar wonderful things are happening" at Anderson Elementary, Rykers Ridge

RiverRoots Revival

Bob Demaree

The band 67 Sun performs on the Milberry and Main outdoor stage at Saturday's RiverRoots Revival music festival. A steady crowd attended the free event as about a half-dozen bands performed in the 400 block of Mulberry Street and Red Bicycle Hall in downtown Madison. The hope is to bring back the event as an annual festival similar to when it was a ticketed event at Bicentennial Park up until 2019. For additional photos, see page A8 inside today's edition.

Drought conditions low to moderate

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Jefferson County is currently under low to moderate drought conditions and Madison Township Fire Department Chief Robert Black said officials are closely monitoring ongoing conditions.

"We're not putting any type of burn ban in," Black said. However, he said caution should be used for any open burning. "Be sure to have something to put out the fire if you're going to have a campfire."

With plenty of sunny days and windy conditions, fields and woods have begun to dry. With additional heat as summer arrives, unless there is sufficient rainfall, conditions could reach drought levels.

Last fall, the county was under a burn ban that began Oct. 13 and was lifted Nov. 14. During that time, there was a blaze that burned for three days in the 9000 block of West State Road 356 close to the Scott County line that impacted 16 to 18 acres of woods.

Former teacher pleads to sexual abuse charges

Mascardo to serve 60 days for groping men in gas stations

BY CHRISTIAN MARNON
PAXTON MEDIA GROUP

A former Trimble County High School math teacher who wore women's clothes while allegedly committing more than a dozen counts of sexual abuse in Oldham and Jefferson counties for groping the genitals of male victims at gas stations and other locations entered a plea deal last week in exchange for a 60-day jail sentence.

Michael Mascardo, 57, who lived in Crestwood, Kentucky, at the time of his arrest, accepted an offer from the Commonwealth's Attorney in district court, pleading guilty to all 10 counts of third-degree sexual abuse and two counts of harassment in Oldham County alone.

In exchange for that guilty plea, Mascardo receives 60-days in jail, according to District Judge Daniel Fendley.

Records obtained through a Freedom Of Information Act request from Trimble County Schools show that Mascardo joined the Trimble County High School staff as a math teacher at the beginning of the 2014-15 school year. At the time of hiring, he was named Micaelo Balingit and had recently moved to the United States after teaching for 24 years at various schools in Ontario, Canada, according to hiring documents obtained via open records request.

Michael Mascardo, left, entered a plea deal in Oldham County district court last week for a 60-day jail sentence.

In March 2015, Mascardo legally changed his name from Micaelo Balingit to Michael Mascardo, according to records from Trimble County Schools. At the end of 2014-2015 school year, he accepted a job beginning in fall 2015 as a math teacher with JCPS, where he is currently employed.

Mascardo also faced five counts of third-degree sexual abuse in Jefferson County, Kentucky, for similar incidents, but pleaded guilty to two counts and received a 90-day conditional sentence on March 9 of this year.

The Oldham County Sheriff's Office first arrested Mascardo in January on a complaint warrant with four first-degree sexual abuse charges.

In that complaint, Officer Jeremiah Dowell with Oldham County Police Department stated that on Dec. 9 around 6 p.m., he received a report from a victim who claimed Mascardo "groped him in a sexual manner" at the Circle K gas station in Centerfield.

The victim told police that Mascardo approached his vehicle, presented a map and asked for directions. When the victim attempted to provide directions, Mascardo reached into the vehicle and groped his genitals, according to the complaint.

Further investigation revealed that three more male victims in the Buckner area reported an identical situation. Police obtained a license plate number from a previous report and located Mascardo.

The complaint described Mascardo as a "homosexual male attempting to appear female" who admitted to the acts, calling it a form of "flirting." Mascardo also provided police with several items of female clothing, a red female wig and two maps, according to the complaint.

The story gained momentum through regional news outlets, prompting more victims to come forward with reports of near-identical groping incidents, resulting in the remaining charges in Oldham and Jefferson counties.

Mascardo taught at Jefferson County Public Schools (JCPS) as a math teacher during the time of the offenses.

JCPS Chief Communication Officer Carolyn Callahan confirmed in early February that Mascardo remained employed by the district pending the results of an internal investigation.

We will update this story with a confirmation of his current employment status.

Mascardo also held several teaching jobs before he landed at JCPS.

Records obtained through a Freedom Of Information Act request from Trimble County Schools show that Mascardo joined the Trimble County High School staff as a math teacher at the beginning of the 2014-15 school year. At the time of hiring, he was named Micaelo Balingit and had recently moved to the United States after teaching for 24 years at various schools in Ontario, Canada, according to hiring documents obtained via open records request.

Plane destroyed after flying over DC, crashing in rural Virginia, leaving 4 dead

BY SARAH BRUMFIELD AND MICHAEL BALSAMO
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Federal investigators trudged through rugged terrain Monday in search of wreckage from a business jet to solve the mystery of why the plane veered off course and slammed into a mountain, killing four people.

A day after the plane flew over the nation's capital, prompting the military to scramble fighter jets, the Federal Aviation Administration said in a brief update that the pilot and three passengers were killed and that the plane was "destroyed" in the crash. Their identities weren't immediately released.

NTSB investigator Adam Gerhardt told reporters it will take investigators a while to reach the remote crash scene about two to three miles north of Montebello. They expect to be on the scene for at least three to four days. NTSB spokesperson Jennifer Gabris said that the investigators had to hike to the site on foot because of the mountainous terrain.

Attention on the crash and its cause was heightened by its unusual flight path over Washington, D.C. and a sonic boom caused by military aircraft heard across the capital, and parts of Maryland and Virginia. The North American Aerospace Defense Command said in a statement that military aircraft was authorized to travel at supersonic speeds, which caused the sonic boom. The aircraft also used flares to try to get the pilot's attention.

In other business, the council:

• Had the first reading of an amended ordinance for the allocation of the town's American Rescue Plan funds totaling $647,733. The updated plan included a category that includes water meters, painting the water tower, sewer and storm water infrastructure development for a total of $349,849.93. Other funding categories are security of town property at $52,000, police department vehicles, equipment and radios at $98,000.07, investment in parks and buildings at $122,883, investment in the Hanover Township trustee at $5,000 and investment in first protection at $20,000.

• Established Clean-up Hanover days during the week of July 16-23 in which dumpsters will be available at the Hanover Compost Center. The disposal drop-off is a free service to residents living in the town limits.

• Town Marshal Shane Caldwell advised that the town needs to pay $2,070 for the annual fee for anti-virus protection for the town's computers by June 10.

• Caldwell said internet is scheduled to be installed at Rainbow Park this coming week and that security cameras would also be installed. Additionally, he said there will be free public WiFi available at the park.

recommendation is to explore that to the point that we feel like it's not fruitful. I'm also requesting that the court set dates to keep it moving so that it's still on a reasonable timetable to be resolved."

Duey O'Neal, the city's code enforcement officer, provided an update on blight throughout the city, first showing photos of several nuisances issues as well as several unsafe structures.

He said there are currently 196 active nuisance cases in the city with 113 new ones in 2023 — 39 coming in May and 10 so far in June — noting that the growing season will likely cause an increase. O'Neal said the causes of the nuisance issues include trash, abandoned and junk vehicles, grass and weeds, and unclean and disorderly premises.

The structures include: 319 Cragmont St., 709 Elm St., 145 Lafayette St., 776 West Third St., 1483 West Hutchinson Lane, 307 Hendricks St., 705 Walnut St., 524 Jefferson St., the garage behind 841 Banta Avenue and a structure in the alley at 755 West Third St.

O'Neal said he and Nicole Schell, the city's director of planning, are working on an vacant and abandoned ordinance to address means to hold property owners accountable while keeping the city officials aware of the situation.

"Continue to shine a light on these because it takes a lot of property owner collaboration to make the difference that we want," Mayor Bob Courtney said. "We cannot abate all these unsafe structures or nuisances by ourselves. It takes owner cooperation. The universe is way too large. It's gone on for way too long."

Courtney noted it takes longer to resolve nuisances if the process requires going through the legal system "but you have to keep doing it, and that's the only way to drive these numbers down" for unsafe structures and nuisances in the city. "We also need to develop policies that enable us to take the action that we need to," he said.

In other business, the board:

• Agreed to a contract for up to $15,000 with Commonwealth Engineers to assist the city in updating a 1966 ordinance on the city's streets and sidewalks, particularly the excavation procedures on right-of-ways, streets and sidewalks.

Commonwealth Engineers is overseeing the city's drinking water infrastructure project, and Rob Bellucci, project manager for the company, said there are very specific requirements for contractors when it comes to back-fill and surface restoration.

"This is something that shouldn't be limited to large scale capital improvement projects. The city has a lot of initiatives going on right now" and those other contractors need "some sort of guidance document, providing them with instructions on what the expectations are from the city as far as back-fill and service restoration, and timeliness to do each of those types of things," Bellucci said.

• Approved PACE applications totaling $118,350 including three that received $25,000 dilapidated structure grants — 912 West First St. and 914 West First St., owned by Trevor and Van Crafton, and 623 Broadway St., owned Julie Brown. PACE grants for $7,500 went to 510 Mulberry St., owned by Central Holdings; 723 East First St., owned by Steven Miner; 315 Mill St., owned by Tim and Linda Bipes; 606 West Third St., owned by Jacqueline Frazer; and 760 West Third St., owned by Emeka Koren and Jilly Kelly-Koren. Also, a PACE grant of $5,850 was approved for the demolition of 700 Green Road by the Heath Family Trust.

A PACE award was provided for 212 East St., owned by the Jefferson County Youth Shelter, of $3,750, which was half of what was original sought. Originally hoping to do tuck pointing, the organization was unable to obtain other funding for that, so only the gutter guard portion was finished, thus resulting in the lowered grant award. Also, a final PACE award of $12,500 was given for 411 Dowell St. as the remaining half of a $25,000 dilapidated structures grant to Brian Marshall.

• A resolution was adopted that limits golf cart parking in the refurbished Mulberry Street public parking lot only to spaces designated for golf carts. Courtney noted that only applies to the Mulberry Street parking, and is intended to maximize the parking spaces for vehicles in that parking lot.

Additionally, approval was given to close the north half of the Mulberry Street parking lot beginning at 6 p.m. on Thursday, June 22 and ending 10 p.m. on Friday, June 23, to provide for a ribbon cutting ceremony. The ribbon cutting event will be June 23 at 5:30 p.m. followed by a celebration. The closing before the event is to provide time for set up which will include support from the Madison Area Arts Alliance.

• Approved street closings for the Madison Ribberfest BBQ & Blues festival on Friday, Aug. 18, and Saturday, Aug. 19, and for Rockin' on the River Car Show on Saturday, Sept. 2.

Additionally, approval was given to the Dupont Community Park Project to allow ATVs to travel through specific Madison city streets between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. for the Dupont ATV Poker Run on Saturday, June 17. Registration for that event will be that day at the Dupont Fire House beginning at 11 a.m.

Elementary and Lydia Middleton Elementary. She also praised the junior high art program for the work that's being done there. "If I could do a handstand, I would," she said.

Warner, a 2008 MCHS graduate who has been employed with Scott County School District 2 since 2015, told the school board, "I just want to say how excited I am to come back home," He noted that was sweetened with the hiring of Shaun Pennington, also a 2008 MCHS graduate, as the school corporation's grant and compliance specialist at the May school board meeting. Warner said he and Pennington, both 2012 graduates of Franklin College, went to elementary school, junior high, high school and college together. "Who would have thought we would have been back here in these roles together? We're pretty excited about that opportunity to work together. Just to be home again, and be a Cub again, where it all started for me, is exciting. So, I'm looking to getting started, and am super excited to be here."

Warner, Mahoney and Schutte will each officially begin their new positions July 1.

Warner, the new principal of Madison Junior High School, served as assistant principal at Scottsburg Elementary School from 2015-2017 then worked in instructional programming, assessment and as a data specialist for the Scott County School District 2 from 2017-2019. Since 2019, Warner has been principal of Johnson Elementary School in Scott County.

Warner replaces Dan Grill, who had been Madison Junior High School principal since 2019 and is now moving to Madison Consolidated High School where he will be assistant principal.

Meanwhile, Kenton Mahoney was named principal of Rykers' Ridge Elementary, the second consecutive year that he's changed positions in the Madison school corporation. Mahoney, who was assistant principal at Anderson Elementary last school year, joined Madison Consolidated Schools in 2015, initially teaching math and science at the junior high and later teaching science at the high school.

A 2009 MCHS graduate, Mahoney replaces Jill Mires who resigned to become assistant superintendent at Salem Community Schools.

"I'm excited to go to Rykers' Ridge," said Mahoney. "It's a little bittersweet because I am going to miss my time at Anderson. I loved what we were doing at that school. I loved being the assistant principal there but I am excited to step into this new role and be principal at Rykers' Ridge. So, I am excited to see what we can do, what we build there."

John Schutte was hired as Cubs Enterprise coordinator. From 2012 to 2021, he worked as vice president of sales for Batesville Casket Company. Before that, he was with Forethought Financial Services from 2000 to 2009, serving as chief marketing officer in his last two years there.

"It's an honor be here and I look forward to this role," Schutte said. "I look forward to working with everyone and taking this on to the next level."

Schutte replaces Whitney Mathews who resigned the position in March.

Injured hiker rescued at Clifty Park

BY THE COURIER STAFF

An injured hiker Saturday at Clifty Falls State Park led to an hour-long rescue by Madison firefighters.

Madison Township Fire Department Chief Robert Black said firefighters and Norton King's Daughters' Hospital EMS were called to the scene at 1:55 p.m. when a female hiker suffered an ankle injury on Trail 5, one-quarter mile north of the Lilly Memorial Overlook.

Black noted there is a staircase from Lilly Memorial Overlook that goes down to Trails 4 and 5, and the original plan was to bring the victim in a Stokes basket to the staircase and then put her on a stair chair. However, they were advised that the staircase was not suitable for such a rescue so rescuers executed a backup plan.

Rescuers instead brought the victim up the hillside on a Stokes basket, using ropes and pulleys with Rykers' Ridge Fire Department, Hanover Volunteer Fire Department and Madison Clifty 6 called on to assist Madison Township. Black said it took approximately one hour to get her up the hill.

The victim, who was from Fishers, Indiana, signed a release to be taken to a central Indiana hospital so the extent of her ankle injury was not known until X-rays are taken.

Black said the hiker was on the trail path at the time of the injury but that footwear was possibly a factor in the injury. He noted that proper footwear is important for hikers and especially at some of Clifty's more demanding trails.

"Be sure you wear proper shoes with ankle support," Black said.

Searcy named Carroll's first Regional Star in Agricultural Placement

BY JENNIFER EADES
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Evan Searcy breaks new ground all the time on his family farm, and now he is breaking new ground in the Carroll County High School FFA Chapter by being named the first Regional Star in Agricultural Placement.

Evan, who recently graduated and will be attending Eastern Kentucky University, is a vital part of the operation at his family's farms. He has worked with his dad on Tucky Farms, with his grandfather at Airey Acres Farms, as a co-op at Nugent Sand, at Searcy Monuments with his mom and dad and also helps out some on Josh and Mackenzie Wright's farm. He's a busy young man and that is paying dividends for him in the FFA program.

FFA members who participate in supervised agricultural experience (SAE), which is basically any agricultural activity outside of school, can track those hours and apply for a state FFA degree. Evan, with the help of his ag teachers Mackenzie Wright and Sabrina Stephenson, completed the application and he underwent an intensive interview on his family farm.

Wright, who was present for the interview, said Evan led the process. "I took them for a ride around our farm and explained how our farm has gone from a patch of overgrown land to a pretty nice and productive farm," Evan said, noting he doesn't mind being interviewed but he does not like to give presentations.

He obtained the state degree and was ultimately named Regional Star in Placement. Carroll County's region includes 11 chapters. The regional winners will compete June 8 in Lexington, where they will participate in more interviews and the winner will be announced live.

The goal for the Star award is to show growth over time. "We knew this was a possibility when he was in seventh grade," Wright said. "We've pushed him hard."

According to his state degree application, Evan has worked 1,458 unpaid hours of SAE and 873 of paid SAE hours. COVID helped bump up his hours, but working in five different locations also helps him meet this key component of the state degree application. "Before we did all this it was just like every normal day, but this made me realize I work a lot more than I should," the humble Evan said. "It makes me feel pretty special" to receive this honor.

Information on the livestream from the 94th Kentucky State FFA Convention can be found at kyffa.org/stateconvention.

Community Foundation accepting grant applications

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County's Annual Competitive Grant Cycle is now open for applications.

Online applications will be accepted until noon on Friday, Aug. 4. During last year's cycle, the Community Foundation awarded nearly $300,000 to 21 nonprofit organizations that serve Jefferson County.

Competitive grants are made possible by Flexible Community Funds and Field of Interest Funds. Flexible Community Funds give the Foundation's Grants Committee the flexibility to assist in fulfilling the ever-changing needs and dreams of Jefferson County's citizens.

Grants from Field of Interest Funds are chosen to benefit a specific interest, such as the arts, the environment, or youth development.

Organizations must create a profile and complete the online application through the link available at www.cfmjc.org.

"We encourage 501©3 organizations interested in applying to contact myself or Bill Barnes to discuss their grant idea before submitting an application," said Community Foundation staff member Kelly Miller, who oversees the Competitive Grants process.

"We've found through the years that these discussions result in better applications and an opportunity to save time if the project isn't a good fit with the Foundation's Guidelines and Criteria.

"We're here and available to help applicants put their best foot forward."

Miller shared some tips when applying for grants:

- Don't wait until the last minute to submit your application.
- Set a realistic timeline for and demonstrate sustainability of the project.
- Break out the specific costs of the project, include pricing quotes, and only show costs and data related to serving Jefferson County -Make sure 100% of your Board of Directors contribute financially to your organization.
- Don't apply with a project that will be completed before the end of September 2023 as funds will not be released before then.
- Don't assume that your request amount is too large or too small.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, June 6, the 157th day of 2023. There are 208 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 6, 1944, during World War II, Allied forces stormed the beaches of Normandy, France, on "D-Day" as they began the liberation of German-occupied Western Europe.

On this date:

In 1844, the Young Men's Christian Association was founded in London.

In 1912, Novarupta, a volcano on the Alaska peninsula, began a three-day eruption, sending ash as high as 100,000 feet; it was the most powerful volcanic eruption of the 20th century and ranks among the largest in recorded history.

In 1939, the first Little League baseball game was played as Lundy Lumber defeated Lycoming Dairy 23-8 in Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

In 1968, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy died at Good Samaritan Hospital in Los Angeles, 25 1/2 hours after he was shot by Sirhan Bishara Sirhan.

In 1977, a sharply divided U.S. Supreme Court struck down a Louisiana law imposing an automatic death sentence on defendants convicted of the first-degree murder of a police officer.

In 1982, Israeli forces invaded Lebanon to drive Palestine Liberation Organization fighters out of the country. (The Israelis withdrew in June 1985.)

In 1989, burial services were held for Iran's spiritual leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

In 2001, Democrats assumed control of the U.S. Senate after the decision of Vermont Republican James Jeffords to become an independent.

In 2005, the Supreme Court ruled, 6-3, that people who smoked marijuana because their doctors recommended it to ease pain could be prosecuted for violating federal drug laws.

In 2006, soul musician Billy Preston died in Scottsdale, Arizona, at age 59.

In 2020, tens of thousands rallied in cities from Australia to Europe to honor George Floyd and voice support for the Black Lives Matter movement. Massive, peaceful protests took place nationwide to demand police reform.

Ten years ago: Director of National Intelligence James Clapper moved to tamp down a public uproar spurred by the disclosure of secret surveillance programs involving phone and Internet records, declassifying key details about one of the programs while insisting the efforts were legal, limited in scope and necessary to detect terrorist threats.

Five years ago: Breaking with President Donald Trump, House Speaker Paul Ryan said there was no evidence that the FBI had planted a "spy" in Trump's 2016 presidential campaign in an effort to hurt his chances at the polls. Trump commuted the life sentence of Alice Marie Johnson, who had spent more than two decades behind bars for drug offenses; her cause had been championed by reality TV star Kim Kardashian West.

One year ago: British Prime Minister Boris Johnson survived a no-confidence vote, securing enough support from his Conservative Party to remain in office despite a substantial rebellion that left him a weakened leader with an uncertain future. (Johnson would resign on July 7.) Russia began turning over the bodies of Ukrainian fighters killed at the Azovstal steelworks, the fortress-like plant in the destroyed city of Mariupol where their last stand became a symbol of resistance against Moscow's invasion.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, June 7, the 158th day of 2023. There are 207 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 7, 1965, the U.S. Supreme Court, in Griswold v. Connecticut, struck down, 7-2, a Connecticut law used to prosecute a Planned Parenthood clinic in New Haven for providing contraceptives to married couples.

On this date:

In 1712, Pennsylvania's colonial assembly voted to ban the further importation of enslaved people.

In 1848, French painter and sculptor Paul Gauguin was born in Paris.

In 1892, Homer Plessy, a "Creole of color," was arrested for refusing to leave a whites-only car of the East Louisiana Railroad. (Ruling on his case, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld "separate but equal" racial segregation, a concept it renounced in 1954.)

In 1929, the sovereign state of Vatican City came into existence as copies of the Lateran Treaty were exchanged in Rome.

In 1942, the Battle of Midway ended in a decisive victory for American naval forces over Imperial Japan, marking a turning point in the Pacific War.

In 2006, Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, the founder of al-Qaida in Iraq, was killed by a U.S. airstrike on his safe house.

In 2016, Democrat Hillary Clinton and Republican Donald Trump claimed their parties' presidential nominations following contests in New Jersey, California, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Ten years ago: President Barack Obama vigorously defended the government's just-disclosed collection of massive amounts of information from phone and Internet records as a necessary defense against terrorism, and assured Americans, "Nobody is listening to your telephone calls."

Five years ago: The Trump administration said in a court filing that it would no longer defend key parts of the Affordable Care Act, including provisions that guarantee access to health insurance regardless of any medical conditions; it was a rare departure from the Justice Department's practice of defending federal laws in court. In advance of a summit with North Korea's Kim Jong Un, President Donald Trump declared that "attitude" is more important than preparation."

One year ago: Russia claimed to have nearly taken full control of one of the two provinces that make up Ukraine's Donbas, bringing the Kremlin closer to its goal of capturing the eastern industrial heartland of coal mines and factories. Actor Matthew McConaughey called on Congress to "reach a higher ground" and pass gun control legislation two weeks after 19 students and two teachers were killed in a shooting in his hometown of Uvalde.

Milton man gets 45 years in Madison stabbing murder

BY SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

A man who admitted to beating and stabbing a homeless person to death in August 2021 in downtown Madison has been sentenced to 45 years, fully executed, at the Indiana Department of Correction.

Keith Telesh

Keith Telesh, 50, entered a guilty plea to a charge of murder and was sentenced in Jefferson Circuit Court on June 2.

"This was a heinous crime that senselessly claimed a life," said Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter. "This is an appropriate sentence for the level of violence that was exhibited. It can't bring back the victim, but I hope his loved ones feel a measure of justice knowing Mr. Telesh will be behind bars for decades — quite possibly the rest of his life."

On Aug. 25, 2021, police were called to 705 Walnut St. in reference to an unresponsive man lying in a backyard. They discovered the man, Dana Paul "Dingo" Hodge, 65, was dead. Hodge had numerous stab wounds to his neck.

Police began an investigation in the area, speaking to a cashier at a nearby liquor store who told them two men had come into the store the previous day asking if she knew where "Dingo" was staying and claiming he was a thief.

Surveillance camera footage captured images of the men. A neighbor to the property where Hodge was discovered reported she had seen two men walking around the backyard of the residence where Hodge typically slept. One of the men was identified as Telesh.

Further investigation revealed that Telesh's girlfriend's purse was stolen from her car near the First Street Saloon, where Telesh was employed. Surveillance cameras captured the incident and employees identified the man stealing the purse as Hodge.

Telesh's girlfriend told police that Telesh went looking for Hodge on Aug. 24 in an attempt to recover her purse. The investigation also involved interviewing an employee of the Jefferson County Public Library, a place Hodge frequented, as well as Telesh's girlfriend.

After obtaining a search warrant on Aug. 26, Madison police served it on Telesh's Milton, Kentucky, home with assistance from the Trimble County Sheriff's Department.

They found bloody clothing and shoes, along with a set of kitchen knives in the trash can. After initially denying involvement, Telesh admitted to the crime, telling police he hit Hodge in the head with a baseball bat, knocking him unconscious and then stabbed him in the neck.

"This crime was solved very quickly, thanks to outstanding work by Det. Ricky Harris, Det. Shawn Scudder, and the Madison Police Department," said Prosecutor Sutter. "They deserve credit for their role in solving this crime and quickly arresting the man responsible."

Dr. Susan Stack named Jefferson County health officer

Hall to serve on board as JCHD prepares for state expanded health services

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Board members for the The Jefferson County Health Department (JCHD) have named Dr. Susan Stack as Jefferson County's new county health officer and Jefferson County Commissioners approved that appointment at their meeting on Thursday.

Stack, a pediatrics specialist practicing with Norton King's Daughters' Health in Madison with 42 years of experience, takes over that role after the retirement of longtime Health Officer Dr. John Hossler after a tough three years helping guide the Jefferson County through the COVID-19 pandemic and his retirement last year from his practice in downtown Madison.

"We reviewed several applications and Dr. Stack was the best fit," JCHD Administrator Lyndsey Wyne said.

Stack's appointment as county health officer brought with it a vacancy on the board of health, on which Stack had previously served. Dr. Nathan Hall, who joined Norton King's Daughters' Health's downtown Madison clinic last year, was appointed to fill that seat on the health board.

In other business related to the county's health department, Wyne asked the County Commissioners to reinstate the assistant administrator position that was eliminated by the health department several months ago. She said with new health initiatives approved by the Indiana General Assembly earlier this year, that the position will be needed to help complete and track documentation for programs associated with Gov. Eric J.

Holcomb's 2023 Next Level Agenda to transform, expand and better track the way public health is delivered to Hoosiers.

Wyne said the county already performs many of the initiatives included in the governor's health package but in order to comply with the program and receive additional funding, a lot more reports will have to be filed with the state which requires a lot more tracking on the part of the health department.

In addition, the initiatives — which include areas such as testing, overdose and suicide prevention and traumatic injury prevention to name a few — must show improvement under the program. Tracking results and finding ways to improve those results will be essential in complying with the program.

"We meet almost all of the requirements but we're not excelling in any of them," Wyne said, adding the program allows the health department to partner with other groups and agencies to determine the best strategies for improving the health of Hoosiers.

She said no additional funding will need to be budgeted for the assistant administrator position at this time and the additional state funding should cover the cost of the position in the future.

"At the time we did away with it, it was a position we felt like was the right thing to do and now bringing it back feels like the right thing to do," Wyne said, later adding, "You all are very supportive of the health department ... it's one of the better funded in the state."

While the state program is not mandatory — counties can either opt-in or opt-out but funding increases will go to those who participate — but Jefferson County has been proactive in the past so opting-in would be the way to go. "Prevention is much better than being reactive," Wyne said, noting that the program is prevention-based.

She said state funding for the program won't be known until probably the end of September after the state receives confirmation on which counties will and will not participate before the state divides millions of dollars among those who take on the challenge.

In other business, the commissioners:

• Heard a request by Lifetime Resources for $15,000 in funding for the next budget year. The agency will be starting a new caregiver program to train those who find themselves in a new situation where they are caregivers but perhaps not trained or skilled to do that task.

The agency also hopes to get more drivers for its Catch-A-Ride program that struggled during the COVID pandemic and has yet to fully rebound.

• Highway Superintendent Bobby Phillips opened two bids for a small structure replacement on County Road 750 North which will essentially be a bridge upon completion. RL Vuckson Excavating Inc. bid $408,719 to All Star Paving's $591,295. In a somewhat rare development, the low bid was actually lower that the engineer's estimate of $450,325 for the work.

• Patty Jackson of the Southeastern Indiana Regional Planning Commission held a bid opening for Jefferson County's Owner Occupied Rehab Program with the bids to be reviewed before the Commission's next meeting at which time they could be approved.

• Heard a report by Mark Shireman on jail construction change orders including some changes to help make staffing more efficient when the jail opens, a plan to revise the manholes at the site to make them more efficient. He said the charges are within the $450,000 left in the jail budget to make revisions.

Trimble County's Kinley Kunkel competes Thursday in the girls 3,200-meter run during the KHSAA State Track Meet at the University of Kentucky Outdoor Track Facility in Lexington. Kunkel won the event by more than 20 seconds and ran third in the 1600.

Kunkel closes out career with state championship

BY JOSEPH RUSSELL
PAXTON MEDIA GROUP

LEXINGTON — Kinley Kunkel knew she wanted to cap off her high school career on a high note, and it doesn't get much better than going out as a state champion.

The Trimble County High School senior captured first place in the 3200-meter run at the KHSAA Class A State Track Meet at the University of Kentucky Outdoor Track Facility on a bright and sunny Friday — winning by more than 20 seconds in the process.

"I knew I could do it and I knew I had the potential to do it," said Kunkel, who finished in 11:42.01. "I just knew I had to get out there and run my race.

"I'm definitely better in the two-mile and more endurance-type stuff. And this year I've really been working on my consistency, and that's really helped a whole lot."

Kunkel also took third in the 1,600-meter run in 5:21.02, but her success didn't come as a surprise to Trimble County coaches.

"Kinley was feeling the heat a little bit, but she did great," said assistant coach Jared Sanford. "She ended up going ahead and taking the lead the whole way.

"She set the tone with indoor state, winning that with what would've been a pretty huge PR for the two-mile. That set the tone. She was aggressive in workouts, going faster than the pace I had. She broke through about a month ago at Male and ran an 11:19, so the talent's been there and she worked for it."

Rebecca Kainer also finished 16th in

Madison senior Chip Cox clears the bar during the Pole Vault State Finals in Bloomington on Friday. Cox cleared the bar twice at 14 feet, 6 inches but dislodged it on the way down both times to finish 18th in his fna IHSAA State Finals.

Madison's Cox places 18th at state in pole vault

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

BLOOMINGTON — Like most sports, pole vault is a game of inches and it was just a few inches here or there that kept Chip Cox from a possible podium finish.

The Madison Consolidated High School senior cleared the bar in each of his final two attempts but grazed it on the way down to end up 18th in the IHSAA Pole Vault State Finals at Indiana University in Bloomington on Friday.

Cox had easily cleared the bar during his first two heights to stay alive and, after a bad miss in his first attempt at 14 feet, 6 inches, he switched poles and went to work.

He was over the bar on his second attempt, but then hit it with his stomach on the way down. The third attempt was even closer as brief contact with the bar caused it to wobble and fall down after Cox was already laying on the mat below.

"I went up poles on my second to last jump and had never been on it before. It was only probably my third time on a 15-foot pole," Cox said. "The only other time was when I took a shot at the school record at the beginning of May. And just kind of getting used to a new pole and then battling standards. I figured I'd bring more heat in on that last one. And I did and I was under so hard to make up. I wish I would have gotten some more work on that last week."

Cox finished tied with Floyd Central's Jake Grangier for 18th overall, three spots better than his seeded position from the regional the week before. Had he cleared 14-6, he would have been no worse than 11th overall, two spots from a medal.

Tim Palmer, Cox's pole vault coach at Madison, said he thought his star pupil was over the bar on the last attempt, but he was proud of Cox and his effort nonetheless.

"He had two good jumps over the bar. That's the biggest poles he's ever jumped with. That pole is probably three times heavier than the one he had been using," Palmer said. "Whenever we looked at the video, his hip height was around 15-6 so we knew he had a shot at 15 feet or better today and was real excited

Runne steers Miss HomeStreet to fastest lap at H1 Spring Test Session

BY THE COURIER STAFF

It didn't take Dylan Runne very long to get used to his new ride in the Unlimited hydroplane ranks and even less time to announce himself as a competitor.

Runne took his first spins aboard the U-1 Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison and posted the top overall speed during the H1 Unlimited Spring Test Session on the Columbia River in Tri-Cities, Washington, on Friday.

Runne, who replaced the retired Jimmy Shane in the cockpit of the defending National High Points Champion, clocked four laps in excess of 160 mph, the last at 163.155 mph which topped a field of seven boats in attendance.

A highly-accomplished pilot in the lower ranks, Runne first drove an Unlimited when he tested Miss Madison Racing's other hull, the U-91 Goodman Real Estate, at San Diego last September. After a few shakedown laps in the blue HomeStreet hull, Runne was ready to go.

"The whole HomeStreet Madison team has put so much work in to make this the absolute best race boat in the world," Runne said. "They can make it look easy for you. You just get in and push both pedals down and get going."

Combined with the seven laps he ran at San Diego, Runne was able to officially qualify as an Unlimited driver and will be allowed to compete in the H1 season opener. As a rookie, he will still have to start back and outside of the field during his first two heats of competition.

Runne wasn't the only driver getting his first laps in for Miss Madison Racing. Andrew Tate, the team's long-time nemesis, stepped into the Goodman Real Estate and also topped 160 mph, clocking in at 160.568 for the fourth-fastest speed.

Tate's 2007-vintage boat has undergone extensive work in the offseason and the driver said that getting a feel for the changes was more important than making raw speed.

"It's a good place to start. I think we got some work to do," Tate said. "I probably could do a little better, too, and you know, hopefully, the next time we go we keep improving."

The annual H1 test session was the first time for several teams to get a chance to work out some kinks before the 2023 season kicks off in Guntersville, Alabama, on June 23-25.

The Strong Racing duo of Corey Peabody and J. Michael Kelly finished second and third, respectively, on the speed ladder.

Like Tate's U-91, both Strong boats underwent massive repairs and refining during the offseason, none more so than Peabody's U-9 Beacon Plumbing, which lost a sponson and saw its center spar snapped during a bad crash at Madison last July.

As a result, neither Peabody nor Kelly were trying to post hot laps. Still, Peabody's 162.238 mph was second-fastest while Kelly, in the U-8 Beacon Electric, was third-fastest at 162.194.

"These are almost new boats," Kelly said. "It was nice to have the power back. We had a lot of power two years ago and last year, we were way down for some reason. But we were back today."

Dustin Echols is replacing Dave Villwock at the helm of the U-40 Bucket List Racing this year and was fifth-fastest at 159.812 while rookie Gunnar O'Farrell was sixth-fastest at 155.628 aboard the U-21 Lakeridge Paving. Jamie Nilsen was seventh in the U-11 Legend Yacht Transport at 155.335.

An eighth boat was on hand, the U-440 Bucket List Racing with Brent Hall driving, but it was unable to get on the water due to electrical issues.

Six of the eight boats on hand are expected to make the first two races of the season, at Guntersville, and at Madison June 30-July 2. Only O'Farrell's U-21 and Hall's U-440 plan to skip those races and attend only the Washington state events.

The Evansville-based U-3 Grigg's Ace Hardware, with Jimmy King driving, has announced that it will compete at Guntersville, but is likely skipping Madison. Another boat, the U-27 Wiggins Racing with Villwock driving, is currently finishing construction and is hopeful of making the Guntersville race, which is just down the road from its shop.

the 200-meter dash in 27.85 and 19th in the 400 dash in 1:05.02, while she and Kunkel teamed with Lily Bass and Harmony Johnson for 20th place in the 1600 relay in 4:45.96.

As a team, the Lady Raiders placed 15th with 16 points.

On the boys side, Trimble County's 400 relay team of Ricky Gray, Owen Jackson, Patrick Kainer and Keenan Sanders placed seventh in 45.36.

"Our boys team won regionals, so we had a lot of kids in scoring position," Trimble coach Stu Barnes said. "We had some injuries — two of our sprinters are battling through a hamstring injury and an ankle injury — so our 4x100 still placed but not as high as we were hoping. But you can't do much about injuries."

Individually, Kainer was also eighth in the long jump at 20 feet, one inch, 10th in the triple jump at 39 feet, 10 inches and 19th in the high jump at 5 feet, 8 inches.

Gray placed 10th in both the 100 dash in 11.45 and the 200 dash in 23.01.

Other competitors for Trimble County included Ricky Robinson, who was 21st in the discus at 95 feet, 2 inches, Jackson, who took 22nd in the 200 dash in 27.04, and the 800 relay team of Jackson, Sanders, Scotty Edwards and Kaden May that finished 24th in 1:41.72.

The Raiders earned three team points to place 36th overall.

"They did good," Barnes said of both squads. "It was a hot day, so times and performances weren't exactly personal-record type stuff, but through that adversity, we performed well. We had several kids place, including a state champion.

"They've done a great job. I'm very happy and very proud of all they've accomplished this season."

Seth Franklin competed in four events, including an eighth-place finish in the triple jump, to lead Carroll County High School at the state track meet.

Franklin, a junior, notched a jump of 40 feet, 4.75 inches to earn a medal, to go along with his 10th-place effort in the long jump at 19 feet, 5.75 inches and a 17th-place finish in the high jump at 5 feet, 10 inches.

Franklin also ran alongside junior Johnny Scherder, senior Mitchell Lacefield and junior Grayson Kinman for 16th place in the 400-meter relay in 46.31.

Senior Evan Searcy also stood out for the Panthers, taking ninth in the discus at 121 feet, 3 inches — missing out on a medal by two and a half feet — and 12th in the shot put at 42 feet, 5.5 inches.

As a team, Carroll County finished in 43rd place with one point.

In the overall team competition, Walton-Verona's boys won the state championship with 64 points. Rounding out the top five finishers were Louisville Collegiate (56 points), Bishop Brossart (53.5), St. Henry District (48) and University Heights (47).

COX

about it. It's disappointing but he had a great season and it's not over yet."

Hobart senior Cody Johnston lived up to his billing as the top vaulter in the state, winning the title at 17-feet-even. Homestead's Eli Griffin was second at 15 feet, 3 inches while LaVille's Lincoln Hulsey was third at 15 feet-even.

Cox's career-high is 14 feet, 9 inches, set at a meet earlier in the season. Had he cleared that height on Friday, he would have tied four others at sixth place.

Palmer said that Cox was hampered a bit over the past month by competing in events in which he literally had no competition. Whether a lack of competitors or under bad conditions, Cox didn't get much of a chance to push himself until the sectional.

"We would get into those meets and it was 'let's just do enough to get the win and go home,' " Palmer said. "Sometimes there was bad lightning or the pads were bad and I didn't want to risk injury. Or sometimes there was just nobody to jump against to push him. But I'm proud of him. He's done a great job."

Cox finishes his Madison career with two sectional championships and two trips to the state finals. Despite this year's competition getting over earlier than he would have liked, he was happy with his performance.

"I definitely came back today feeling more like a competitor. The last time it was just kind of finding out where the bathrooms are, hanging out and having a good time," Cox said with a smile. "I'm disappointed on how it ended but I'm happy with myself."

"You couldn't ask for anything better. He came into this meet and looked relaxed today," Madison track coach Scott Holcroft said. "The cool thing for him is that in two weeks he goes to Greensboro and gets another shot at it."

While his official high school season is over, Cox will compete in the Adidas Outdoor Nationals in Greensboro, North Carolina, June 16-18.

Today's Puzzle Solved

Sister dynamic remains family secret

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I am a retired older woman. I've been chained to my sister "Janet" my entire life.

We were treated as one person growing up and were expected to share everything. I believe our relationship was extremely unbalanced because I did all of the sharing, and Janet, the taking.

Janet grew up to be arrogant and thoughtless. She always felt she was the most beautiful person in the room.

I married young and had a family and career, she in turn had a career, multiple marriages and no children.

I have a lot of anxiety when I remember how badly she treated me.

I never told our parents how she behaved when we shared a dorm room in college. I don't believe in betraying confidences, even if I am the victim. My family was unaware of her games.

I helped Janet through her multiple divorces, did her homework in college, helped her find a career and always invited her to join me on vacation. She never reciprocated.

On our last vacation with my family, she secretly played her entitlement over me when we shared a room. I do not want to continue being her only friend and companion.

We do not live near each other, and I am thankful for that.

She is very rude and overbearing, but my family is not aware of how she has treated me or others.

I am not going to "tattle" on her; I just want her to go away.

How can I get her out of my life without becoming the bad person? – Bullied

Dear Bullied: My first suggestion is that you should never share a room with your sister. You've had a lifetime of negative experiences in that regard.

My second suggestion is that you draw out that distance to limit your contact with her altogether.

As a chronically oppressed person, you also seem to be oppressing yourself, essentially following up on your sister's bullying by treating it like a secret that must be kept. "Tattling" is what children worry about. Telling your own truth (or acting in your own best interest) is adult business.

You have adopted the idea that a victim speaking out represents some sort of betrayal to the family system that created and supported this dynamic.

Sister hesitates to give niece advice

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I am an older woman, retired after a long career as a counselor.

I am the oldest of five siblings. My sister is one year younger.

She is very talented, creative and generous.

However, my relationship with her can often be difficult due to her bipolar disorder.

She has described herself "as mean as a snake" during her manic periods.

She is medicated and has been seeing a psychiatrist for years.

She lives with her husband who is a wonderful man who drinks to excess after he plays golf most days and does volunteer work.

I think it's how he manages.

My sister has had conflicted relationships with all four of her children from time to time.

We live on opposite coasts.

There is one daughter in particular with whom she has the most problems. Perhaps they are more like each other – I'm not sure.

That daughter contacted me yesterday via text, asking me if I could give her some advice for dealing with her mom.

I can't imagine how hard it was growing up with a bipolar parent. I dodged her request. I also told her that perhaps her dad could help her better than I can because he knows both her and her mom the best.

I'm very reluctant to get involved in any difficulties between her and her mom.

I love them both, but what should I do? – Confused

Dear Confused: Your sister's illness has had a profound effect on all of you. You see her qualities and positive traits, and I hope you will anchor to this knowledge and respond to your niece's request for advice.

You've dodged her "ask," but you don't seem to know the question, yet. She may need mainly to express her own frustrations or concerns.

You might be able to pass along some of your own strategies for maintaining a relationship with her mother.

In my experience, when people ask for advice (versus being offered unsolicited advice), they are more likely to listen intently, consider it carefully, and (sometimes) follow it.

You know and love your sister. If you believe that she might use your contact with her daughter against both of you, you could emphasize that your conversation must remain private.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Concentrate on being the brightest star in your own production; you could be the sunbeam that lights up someone's day. You may be thrown into contact with people who expect the best so put your best foot forward.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You may be given multiple chances to give in to spontaneous urges, but impulse is unlikely to serve you well now. There may be consequences so make sure to weigh the various pros and cons before making a decision.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Walk a straight line toward your short-term objectives; don't let distractions sidetrack you from what you originally intended. A break from routines could be healthy but you could also get carried away; don't lose sight of the goal.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Put your all into an assignment, work toward a personal goal or bring influential people together. You should have the skills and motivation to keep financial budgets in line. Showing your best can be the feather in your cap that sets you apart.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Romantic promises, honesty and affection from your closest loved ones could abound. You can find new successes by pairing up with like-minded people who might share your views or ideals. Strengthen tranquility in your domestic life.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Meeting and chatting with new people could be just what you need to lift your spirits at the moment. Remain poised if you are given the chance to rub elbows with talented and eccentric people. Don't judge differences — find similarities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Your home and family may be going through a major transition that can be beneficial in the long run. Make loved ones proud of your accomplishments without losing sight of yourself. You could get an unexpected visit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Paying attention to things that can enhance your reputation can help you earn a few extra dollars and bring you favorable recognition at your job. Your money-making skills may be tied to your confidence and give it a pleasant boost.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — A partner or loved one might seem vague right now but in your heart, you may know that they can be trusted to do the right thing. You may feel like you are spending money frivolously but could be pleased with the end results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Pick up the tab when you can. Be as generous with your business contacts as you are with loved ones. Your passion and enthusiasm might shift but your dedication to completing current projects should remain the top priority.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You may be challenged to manage a string of unforeseen or upsetting situations. Strive to remain fair and dignified if you are put on the spot. Roll with the punches and remain diplomatic even if met with adversity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Family dynamics could leave you feeling frustrated if you are trying to make a change. Learn from history, make a fresh start, and begin making amends. But don't lose sight of yourself while working toward a better future.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may be feeling more popular than usual right now, especially when you are working alongside others. Take advantage of opportunities to strengthen your bonds with loved ones. Keeping your promises should help keep someone's support.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Always be yourself. You do not need to fit in when you have a chance to stand out. Remain objective and fair-minded when you can; use your people skills to oversee any emerging emotional situations. Originality could be an advantage.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — If you feel the urge to pretend to be something you're not, time to level up. You do not need to hide your true self; your tribe appreciates your finest qualities. Show off your talents without restraint and you can shine as you are.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Show the world your worth as you manage your day-to-day. Minor adjustments or changes could be a major step in elevating your partnership into a thriving team. Be dynamic about achieving your joint goals and succeed together.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You may be tempted to make a new commitment to a job or a loved one but should avoid going to extremes to please someone else. Staying true to yourself and your heart can be your most powerful asset in decision making.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Gossip comes trickling down the grapevine. While it can seem briefly fun, it eventually turns toxic. Someone could be waiting for you to put the wrong word in the right ear. Allow stories to die away; show that you can rise above.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Smooth out any possible rough edges. A difference of opinion may not be an issue if you remain respectful to other people's boundaries. Your ability to maintain good relationships with people from different backgrounds can be a great asset.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Try to start putting financial plans in motion or kick your career goals into high gear. Your environment can be a wonderful place to show off your skills. You may receive some unexpected news from a partner or close friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You may be willing to put your heart on the line to prove your trustworthiness and loyalty to loved ones. Remain flexible because there could be a few surprises or upsets in store for you at work or in business.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Take every chance you can to embrace new experiences. When your imagination is captured, your talents can light up. People may try to get out of doing their fair share or making things better — try not to get discouraged.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Wait until the dust settles to make potentially major expenditures. Your family dynamics may be in flux, so until adjustments are completed you might not know which direction is best. Patience can be a virtue right now.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You could be swimming in a sea of imagination, which could temporarily make it difficult to be objective about business affairs or could put you at odds with someone else. Wait for better timing to start new projects.

Houser pitches 7 innings as Brewers beat Reds 5-1

CINCINNATI — Adrian Houser pitched seven sparkling innings and Andruw Monasterio hit his first career homer, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to a 5-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds on Sunday.

Victor Caratini also went deep as Milwaukee (32-27) won for the fourth time in five games. The NL Central-leading Brewers also clinched their first road series win since they swept a three-game set at Seattle from April 17-19.

Houser (2-1) allowed six hits, including Jake Fraley's seventh homer in the seventh. He struck out two and walked none.

Cincinnati (26-33) dropped its fourth straight game. Reds right-hander Ben Lively (3-3) was charged with five runs and six hits in seven innings in his first loss since May 19. He struck out five and walked three.

Milwaukee got off to a fast start. With runners on first and second via a pair of walks, Monasterio hit a 400-foot drive to center for a 3-0 lead in the first.

The Brewers added two more in the fifth. Caratini led off with a 429-foot drive to right-center for his third homer of the season. Joey Wiemer then singled, advanced on Christian Yelich's walk and scored on Owen Miller's single to center.

Matt McLain had two of Cincinnati's six hits. The rookie shortstop is batting .342 in his first 18 big league games.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Reds: RHP Hunter Greene had his next scheduled start pushed back a few days due to stiffness in his right hip. He will throw again Sunday in St. Louis. Bell said Greene's injury is "no major concern."

RED SOX 8, REDS 2

Rafael Devers doubled to break an eighth-inning tie and the Boston Red Sox overcame Chris Sale's early exit because of shoulder soreness to beat the Cincinnati Reds 8-2 on Thursday night.

Sale departed after manager Alex Cora and a member of the training staff visited the mound twice in the fourth inning. Sale came out with two out after walking Nick Senzel, with Boston trailing 1-0.

Sale struck out five. The 34-year-old lefthander has struggled to stay healthy during the majority of his time in Boston, undergoing Tommy John surgery in 2020. The last time he made it through an entire season without making a trip to the injured list was 2017.

The Sox will know more about Sale's injury after he undergoes an MRI on Friday.

After the Reds tied it off Chris Martin (1-1) in the eighth, Devers doubled in Alex Verdugo after a leadoff walk in the bottom of the inning. Devers hit a deep drive to straight away center that nearly went out.

Boston added five more runs in the inning. Pinch-runner Ramiel Tapia scored after reliever Kevin Herget (1-2) was called for a balk, Kiki Hernandez singled in two runs and Connor Wong hit a two-run shot into the Green Monster seats.

Reds starter Hunter Greene allowed a run in six innings. He struck out eight as Cincinnati saw its five-game winning streak snapped.

BREWERS 5, REDS 4, 11 INNINGS

Victor Caratini drove in the go-ahead run with an infield grounder in a two-run 11th inning, and Milwaukee beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-4 Friday night following the ejection of Brewers starter Corbin Burnes.

With the score was 3-3, Burnes made a sliding, over-the-shoulder catch of Stuart Fairchild's blooper to end the sixth and celebrated by spiking the ball. Burnes and plate umpire D.J. Reyburn exchanged words, bu and Reyburn ejected the pitcher after Burnes had returned to the dugout.

With automatic runner Brian Anderson on second, Milwaukee loaded the bases against Fernando Cruz (1-1) in the 11th when Andruw Monasterio singled and Joey Wiemer walked. Caratini grounded to second baseman Jonathan India, who threw to shortstop Matt McLain for a forceout, and Caratini beat the relay to first.

Brice Turang hit a comebacker off the glove of Cruz, who threw to second instead of home. While the Reds got another forceout, Turang easily beat the relay to first and avoided an inning-ending double play.

Curt Casali hit a two-out RBI double in the bottom half before Bryse Wilson retired Spencer Steer on a groundout for his third save in four chances.

BREWERS 10, REDS 8

Blake Perkins hit a grand slam for his first career homer and drove in five runs, helping the Milwaukee Brewers top the Cincinnati Reds 10-8 on Saturday.

William Contreras also went deep in Milwaukee's third win in four games. Colin Rea (3-3) pitched five innings of three-run ball for the NL Central leaders, and Devin Williams closed it out after the bullpen faltered.

Expansion still a focus for Big 12 after record revenue for 10 current schools

BY STEPHEN HAWKINS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Big 12 Commissioner Brett Yormark said expansion remains a focus for the conference, which wrapped up its spring meetings Friday with a record revenue distribution of $440 million to split among its 10 current schools.

Less than a year after becoming the commissioner, Yormark said there was a "great discussion" about expansion during the meetings held for the first time in West Virginia.

"We have a plan. As I've said all along, we have an appetite to be a national conference in our make-up from coast to coast. And we do believe in the upside of basketball moving forward as a collective group," Yormark said. "That being said, we love our current composition, love the four new schools that are coming in next month. However, if the opportunity presents itself to create value, we will pursue it."

The Big 12 will expand from 10 to 14 schools on July 1 when BYU, Central Florida, Cincinnati and Houston officially join the league. Those additions come a year before the departures of Oklahoma and Texas to the Southeastern Conference.

The $440 million distribution for the 2022-23 school year is up from $426 million last year, and Yormark said that number will continue to grow in the future.

Big 12 officials last fall extended their media rights deal with ESPN and Fox Sports through the 2030-31 school year, which goes through the upcoming departures of the only current members with football national championships. That deal, which includes football and basketball broadcasts, was set to expire in two years.

While Yormark didn't get into specifics about potential expansion, he acknowledged "football is the driver," but the league would explore all options and considerations at the proper times.

Yormark was asked if future expansion candidates would have to be full members, or could there be potential additions without football, such as a school like Gonzaga.

"We see the upside in basketball moving forward for all the right reasons. We think it's undervalued and there's a chance for us to double down as the No. 1 basketball conference in America," Yormark said.

"There have been conversations, obviously, about what would happen in that next TV cycle. Certainly nothing can be done now, nor should it in fact," he said. "But as we think about the future and ways to create value, there is always that option to decouple basketball from football, to see if there is further value we can create for the conference. And we have positioned ourselves to do so at that point in time, if the opportunity presents itself and it makes sense."

Among other items from the spring meetings:

• Yormark said the league is doing a branding refresh over the next year, but it won't include changing the league's name or logo.

"A refresh is just taking the current visual identity and just contemporizing it and modernizing it," he said. "We're not changing our logo at this point in time. But how do we showcase it maybe with different colors and different applications."

• There were discussions about extending contracts with the league's existing championship sites, including AT&T Stadium in Arlington, Texas, for football, as well as Kansas City for men's and women's basketball, and Oklahoma City for softball.

• The league plans to unveil as early as next week an international strategy focused on Mexico.

"It will outline our strategic plan why we're doing it, the rationale behind it, how we're going to enter the market, who we're partnering with," Yormark said.

"We're truly excited about our international plans and and getting into that market sooner than later. "

Heat dominate Nuggets in 4th to even finals

BY EDDIE PELLS
AP NATIONAL WRITER

DENVER — It was a popular theme before the NBA Finals started — about how the Nuggets, an up-tempo team with fresh legs that could exploit the mile-high altitude in Denver, would have a good chance to wear down the Miami Heat.

The combined fourth-quarter score of the first two games: Heat 66, Nuggets 45.

In Game 2 on Sunday, the Heat outscored the Nuggets by 11 to turn an eight-point deficit into a 111-108 win and knot the series at 1.

And any thought that the Heat couldn't handle all the supposed disadvantages they faced coming into Denver after a seven-game conference final against the Celtics — out the window, just like Denver's home-court advantage in this series.

"That's two fourth quarters, Game 1 and Game 2, where our defense has been nonexistent," Nuggets coach Michael Malone said in an unflinching critique of his team's performance in the loss.

Game 3 is Wednesday in Miami. By then, maybe Malone's message will have sunk in.

He gave an almost identical speech, honing in on the fourth quarter, after Denver's win in Game 1.

Hardly anyone seemed to care. Denver won that game by 11 — it felt like more — and the fact that Miami won the final quarter 30-20, or that Denver had its 24-point lead trimmed to nine for all of 23 seconds late in the game, felt more like garbage-time nitpicking than a major concern.

But issues from that fourth quarter bled into Sunday.

Much as in Game 1, the Nuggets were lost on defensive switching, allowing Miami dozens of open looks from 3-point range.

But in Game 1, the Heat shot 13 for 39 from behind the arc, their woes underscored by Max Strus, who went 0 for 9. In Game 2, Strus made four of his first six 3s and the Heat finished 17 for 35.

That included a flurry of three 3-pointers from Duncan Robinson and Gabe Vincent as part of a 15-2 run early in the fourth. It gave Miami a 90-85 lead it wouldn't relinquish after trailing by eight at the start of the period.

This marked the seventh time Miami has trailed by double digits in the postseason and come back to win, tying a record that has been kept by the league since 1998.

"We've got a lot of belief as a group," Robinson said. "And to be honest, we liked the flow of the game and how it was going."

The Heat shot 68.8% from the field during the fourth quarter after shooting 43.5% over the first three.

Over the final 12 minutes, Bam Adebayo made every shot he took (two field goals, three free throws), Robinson scored all of his 10 points and Jimmy Butler was money, making a 3-pointer and a three-point play on back-to-back possessions to help the Heat expand a three-point lead to seven.

"During the fourth quarter, our guys love to compete," Miami coach Erik Spoelstra said. "They love to put themselves out there in those moments of truth."

The message the Heat hammered home in that fourth quarter — all of Game 2, really — was that the Nuggets, who came into the series heavily favored, are anything but inevitable champions, and that their best player, Nikola Jokic, cannot do this alone.

Jokic scored 41 points in this loss, and Denver dropped to 0-3 in this year's playoffs in games where Joker scores 40-plus. He's also not responsible for guarding the perimeter. The Heat shot 5 for 8 from 3 in the fourth.

In a sign of how dangerous Denver can be, the Nuggets trimmed their own 12-point deficit to three, and Jamal Murray had a decent look at a tying shot just before the buzzer. It rimmed out. The Heat players jumped off the bench and were practically bouncing off the court and into a victorious locker room.

The Nuggets — looking for answers. Neither they nor the thin air in Denver could wear down Miami.

"I think the altitude, too much is made of that," Malone said. "They came out in the fourth quarter with a huge sense of desperation, and we didn't match that."

NIL Summit predicts more dramatic changes in college

BY CHARLES ODUM
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — Only days before a contingent of Southeastern Conference coaches and administrators will ask for federal help in regulating the expanding ability of college athletes to earn money while still in school, the second annual NIL Summit delivered predictions of more dramatic changes to the landscape of college sports.

The Summit was held Saturday through Monday at the College Football Hall of Fame. Speakers at the Summit say athletes' newfound ability to earn money off their name, image and likeness has the potential to create more dramatic change in all college sports.

Max L. Forer is a partner in the Miller Nash law firm based in Portland, Oregon. The firm is active in the rapidly expanding NIL world, and Forer said Sunday he doesn't expect federal action on the matter.

Instead, Forer said he expects schools to follow state statutes on NIL regulations. State rules can make it possible for student-athletes to benefit financially as soon as they sign letters of intent, even before stepping on campus.

"The question then lends itself to will that spur federal action," Forer said at a Summit session devoted to the legal environment for today's college athlete.

"Will this continue to go down this path where states are protecting their institutions? And what happens? And from this seat I don't think the federal government is going to act. I just think it's there's a lot going on. I think state laws will continue to stay more aggressive and the NCAA is going to have to have a decision what they're going to do."

Change can be scary, even for some SEC schools which have the potential to look even more attractive to recruits who hope to land NIL deals with eager-to-please local businesses. According to the On3 website, current 2024 college football recruiting rankings list two-time defending national champion Georgia, Alabama and Florida among the top four signing classes — and among the top four average NIL deals.

Georgia tight end Brock Bowers was a nominee for Student NIL Male Athlete of the Year, which recognizes those who have best leveraged their NIL across multiple brands. Bowers, who will be a junior this season and possible first-round pick in the NFL draft, earns more than $720,000 annually on NIL deals with Associated Credit Union, Zaxby's, Dick's Sporting Goods, and others, according to On3.

The SEC contingent, which includes Commissioner Greg Sankey, administrators and Alabama football coach Nick Saban, this week will meet with lawmakers in Washington and ask for federal assistance in regulating how college athletes can generate NIL income. NCAA president Charlie Baker also believes college athletes need legal protections which federal legislation could provide.

Forer predicts college athletes will be classified as employees instead of student-athletes and ultimately will work under union protection. That would include having a seat at the table when TV rights are negotiated, just as the NFL players association has a say in NFL business.

Forer said the National Labor Relations Board "is very union friendly and this is a priority for them and has been since they really got into office. And so I think this is a very high probability this happens. ... It's going to look pretty similar to professional sports in some ways."

Forer caused a stir in the audience, which included college professionals, when he said the issue of college athletes being required to attend classes in the future could be decided by collective bargaining agreements.

Oregon faculty athletics representative Josh Gordon said many schools could be left behind if there is no federal action to provide an even playing field.

Hoosiers, Wildcats to battle for spot in Super Regional

LEXINGTON — Hunter Gilliam belted a three-run home run and drove in five runs as Kentucky pounded Indiana 16-6 Sunday to force a winner-take-all rematch for a berth in the super regional.

Indiana knocked off the top-seeded Wildcats, 5-3 in a winners bracket game Saturday night, relegating them to an elimination game against West Virginia earlier Sunday. Kentucky won that game, 10-0 to earn a rematch with the Hoosiers on Monday.

Kentucky (39-19) took the lead in the second on a three-run home run by Nolan McCarthy and Gilliam added a two-RBI single in the fourth to make it 6-2. The Wildcats added seven runs in the seventh, capped by Gilliam's three-run homer and a two-run shot by Ryan Waldschmidt.

Ryan Hagenow (3-1) worked 4 innings of relief to earn the win, allowing three runs on seven hits while striking out four.

Ben Seiler (0-1) lasted just 1 innings in the start for the Hoosiers (43-19), giving up four runs on four hits.

On Saturday night, IU's Peter Serruto drilled a three-run home run in the seventh inning to bring Indiana back from a two-run deficit en route to the 5-3 win.

Phillip Glasser hit a first-inning home run to give Indiana a 1-0 lead, but Kentucky answered with a run in the second and took a 3-1 lead in the seventh after Patrick Herrera scored on a fielder's choice and Grant Smith scored on Devin Burkes sacrifice fly.

Josh Pyne opened the seventh inning with a double and Hunter Jessee was hit by a pitch to set the stage for Serruto's home run to right field to take a 4-3 lead. Devin Taylor scored on a wild pitch in the eighth to add an insurance run. Connor Foley hit two batters in the top of the ninth to bring the winning run to the plate, but got a fly out and a pop up to end the game.

Foley worked the final 2 innings to earn his first win.

Zack Lee (5-3) allowed four runs on five hits over his seven-inning start for Iowa, recording nine strikeouts.

Earlier on Sunday, Kentucky's Austin Strickland and two relievers scattered seven hits, McCarthy drove in three runs with a homer and a double, and Kentucky eliminated West Virginia 10-0.

McCarthy drove in one run with a double in the second and hit a two-run homer in the fourth. Devin Burkes added a three-run double in the eighth.

Strickland (4-1) allowed four hits in six innings and struck out six. Magdiel Cotto pitched two innings, allowing two hits and James McCoy pitched the ninth, allowing one hit.

J.J. Wetherholt went 3-for-4 for the Mountaineers.

Grant Siegel (4-3) took the loss.

Indiana State rallies to top Iowa, 7-4 in Terre Haute Regional

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — Miguel Rivera and Grant Magill hit back-to-back two-run doubles in the eighth inning and top-seeded Indiana State rallied past Iowa 7-4 at the Terre Haute Regional on Saturday and is now a win away from a berth in super regionals.

The Sycamores (44-15) await the winner of a loser-out game between Iowa (43-15) and North Carolina (36-23) on Sunday.

The Hawkeyes tied the game at 2-2 on Michael Seegers' RBI single in the fourth and took a 4-2 lead in the sixth after Sam Hojnar doubled home Brennen Dorighi and Kyle Huckstorf hit a sacrifice fly to score Raider Tello from third.

Mike Sears drew a bases-loaded walk to start the Sycamores' eighth-inning rally while Rivera and Magill came up with the clutch doubles.

Jared Spencer came on in the ninth inning and, after walking the lead-off hitter, got a fly out and game-ending double play to earn his seventh save.

Connor Fenlong (10-2) pitched eight innings, scattering seven hits and striking out eight to earn the win.

Brody Brecht worked seven innings in the start for the Hawkeyes (43-15), allowing two runs on two hits and two walks and recorded eight strikeouts. Jared Simpson (4-3) came on to start the eighth inning and managed to record just one out and was tagged with the loss.

Zhang arrives on LPGA Tour, leaves with trophy

BY DOUG FERGUSON
AP GOLF WRITER

The first words from Rose Zhang after the 20-year-old Californian capped off one of the more remarkable 13-day stretches in golf were telling.

"What is happening?" she said.

More tantalizing is what happens next.

Hype rules the day in a society built around social media, and Zhang is one of the rare athletes who delivered. The Stanford sophomore won her second straight NCAA title and then 13 days later was awash in wonder when she won the Mizuho Americas Open in her professional debut.

Women's golf has not seen this level of anticipation since Michelle Wie West turned pro at age 15 equipped with blue-chip sponsors like Nike and Sony.

Zhang walked, talked and played like it was any other tournament. She is so comfortable with who she is that expectations are not part of the equation.

"I honestly didn't even expect to make the cut," she said Sunday evening as she sat next to a trophy stuffed with a bouquet of roses. "And the reason why I say this is because I don't think about my expectations a lot. I think about playing the golf course. I think about trying to shoot the best score that I can. The expectation for me winning did not even cross my mind.

"I was just playing my game. I was having a good time out there," she said. "This is the game that I love, and I'm so thankful to be a professional doing it now."

She became an LPGA Tour member with the win, important because she could not be considered for the Solheim Cup in September otherwise. Now she might as well be penciled in for the American team.

She earned $412,500, though money is not motivation and doesn't compare to endorsements with the likes of Callaway, Adidas, Delta, Rolex, Beats by Dre.

Besides, Zhang has more pressing issues.

She made an appearance on NBC's "Today" show on Monday, then it was back to Stanford to move out of her dorm and get through finals. She will be a full-time player and still intends to finish a communications degree, just as Wie West eventually did.

"I have no idea what I'm going to do with that," Zhang said with a laugh, mentioning an essay that was due for one class, another project for computer science that sounded as though it gives her more anxiety that a downhill putt with a foot of break.

"I have a busy week ahead of me, and that's not golf-related," she said.

Her next appearance inside the ropes is back in New Jersey on an even bigger stage than Liberty National, the course across the Hudson River from Manhattan. Zhang already was given an invitation to the KPMG Women's PGA Championship at Baltusrol.

Also on the horizon the first full week of July is Pebble Beach, where the U.S. Women's Open is being held for the first time. It already was the most anticipated event on the LPGA schedule this year because of the location. Now it has even greater appeal.

Megha Ganne, who challenged for a U.S. Women's Open title at Olympic Club as a teenager, was Zhang's teammate at Stanford. She was asked earlier in the week what the golf world should expect from Zhang.

"More of what she's already shown us in the past few years," Ganne said. "I don't think there is any part of her game or personality or game that's lacking. She's so ready for this. I'm just really excited for her. I think it's going to be a joy to watch."

That she was.

Zhang's debut came against a field that featured seven of the top 10 in the world. She had to sleep on the 54-hole lead — never easy, even for more tested veterans — and never trailed on a tough Sunday in which she never made a birdie.

Most impressive was a 10-foot par putt on the 17th hole that kept her in the lead. She missed an 8-footer on the 18th to win in regulation, and then faced a sudden-death playoff against Jennifer Kupcho — a former NCAA champion and Augusta National Women's Amateur champion, and now an LPGA major champion.

The winning shot effectively was a 4-hybrid from Zhang that settled 10 feet away from a back pin on the 18th green. Ultimately, she needed two putts for the win. What followed was a celebration already familiar to those who have seen Zhang.

She was handed a red rose, and then another, and then another. Before long, she walked off the 18th with enough for more than one bouquet.

There were a few tears, especially during her embrace with Wie West, the tournament host who can relate to a high level of hype. Wie thought outside the box, playing PGA Tour events when she was still in the eighth grade, dreaming of playing in men's majors.

The difference was the outcome. It took Wie West four years to win on the LPGA Tour, five more to capture her lone major in the U.S. Women's Open at Pinehurst No. 2.

Wie West played with Zhang at the Women's Open last year and has become somewhat of a mentor to her.

"It looks easy for her when she plays," Wie West said.

Zhang exudes humility and kindness, along with a calculated approach to golf that led to her Stanford-record 12 titles in just 20 tournaments. And now she's 1 for 1 as a pro.

What next?

"I want to continue trying to carve a path for young kids to just follow your dreams," she said. "I'm so thankful that the young kids enjoy me, enjoy my golf, and I'm just so thankful for the support. So I will continue to do what I'm doing. I'll continue to fight. I'll continue to work hard.

"Hopefully everyone can follow along."

That shouldn't be too difficult.

Golden Knights know from experience victory doesn't ensure win vs. Panthers

BY MARK ANDERSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAS VEGAS — The Vegas Golden Knights were flying high after Game 1 in the 2018 Stanley Cup Final, having just beaten Washington and believing they were en route to a miracle championship for the first-year franchise.

Then reality hit in a big way, the Capitals winning the next four games and celebrating on the Knights' home ice and later on Las Vegas' famed Strip after Game 5.

It's a memory that has stuck with seven current Vegas players — the six original Knights and Chandler Stephenson, who was on the Capitals at the time. That experience could be vital after the Knights opened this year's Stanley Cup Final with a 5-2 Game 1 victory on Saturday over the Florida Panthers.

"I think we're a little bit more humble to the situation now," said Jonathan Marchessault, who also played for Vegas in its first Cup Final. "We know that it doesn't mean anything winning one game in one series. For us, the focus is on next game, and that's how we're going to approach every game."

The Knights have the chance Monday to send a strong message by taking a 2-0 series lead, or the Panthers could show they're not going anywhere by pulling even to make it a best-of-five.

Florida also has folks who have been in this spot before, and players can look back to losing the first game of the first round against Boston for recent experience. Coach Paul Maurice has stayed even-keeled throughout, and that didn't change Sunday.

"Why do I got to be in a bad mood today just because we lost the game?" Maurice said. "That also doesn't do my team any bit of good, to be growling up here or sending messages. That's not what that group needs from me."

Perhaps what the Panthers need is a few more bounces and a little less truculence. They took four penalties in the first 50-plus minutes of the game and then many more, including three misconducts, in a late scuffle.

"Staying out of the box is another thing of emphasis for us," said forward Sam Reinhart, who was held off the scoresheet in the series opener. "We got to play that line where we're trying to play an aggressive game, an in-your-face game. And we're trying to play on that line, for sure."

Other teams have tested the Knights during the playoffs, and sometimes Vegas has responded in ways that has hurt its team. Other times, the Knights have chosen not to retaliate, an approach they mostly took in Game 1.

'I think it's more about us just keeping our discipline and playing between the whistles," Cassidy said. "I don't think we get rattled by certain things. Obviously, our team has emotion and they will play with it. I think we've done a good job across the line for the most part in taking it out of our game when the other teams get to use that as an advantage."

Cassidy knows what it's like as a coach to win Game 1, overseeing the Boston Bruins team that took the initial lead in the 2019 Stanley Cup Final over St. Louis. The Blues, who had current Knights Alex Pietrangelo and Ivan Barbashev on that team, came back to win in seven games.

So Vegas' locker room is filled with those who understand the importance of maintaining urgency in what could potentially be a long series.

Shea Theodore talked before facing the Panthers about how that 2018 team thought it was headed for the championship after that first victory over the Capitals. Perhaps with the disappointment of that outcome still on his mind, when asked Sunday what the experience showed him, Theodore said his only focus was on Game 2.

"Every year, when you lose that last game, you take a lesson out of it," said William Carrier, another holdover Knights player from that first year. "So all the boys who were here the first year, the first game you're not winning it right off the bat. You've got to keep pushing."

NBA says it won't mind if Wembanyama's debut comes in Sacramento

BY TIM REYNOLDS
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

DENVER — Victor Wembanyama's next couple of weeks are now set: He'll be playing in the French league finals starting this weekend, and then the San Antonio Spurs will almost certainly make him the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft on June 22.

And if that means the French star's summer league debut comes in Sacramento instead of Las Vegas in early July, the league is fine with that.

NBA Commissioner Adam Silver said the league doesn't have a preference regarding the site of Wembanyama's first game with the Spurs. While the NBA Summer League in Las Vegas is the biggest — all 30 teams attend — and commands the most attention, there are smaller summer leagues that precede the Vegas event by a few days. Sacramento plays host to one of those events, and the Spurs are one of six teams headed there this year.

"All summer leagues are NBA Summer Leagues," Silver told The Associated Press. "I'm very supportive of the Sacramento summer league. I remember when (Kings owner Vivek Ranadive) first came to the league and said this was something he wanted to do. I said, 'As long as you have enough other teams who support it and players who want to play in it, it's a good thing.' "

The Kings might be getting a lot more buzz than usual this summer. Not only are the Spurs headed there, but so is Charlotte — which holds the No. 2 pick. And it just so happens that the Spurs and Hornets will open Sacramento summer play against one another, potentially setting the stage for a No. 1 vs. No. 2 matchup a few days before Vegas even starts.

If Wembanyama plays in Sacramento, he'd be the first No. 1 pick that didn't debut in Las Vegas since Markelle Fultz for Philadelphia in 2017. The 76ers played in Utah's summer league that year before going to Vegas.
